

ABSTRACT

A method for stabilizing proteins immobilized on the surface of a solid support, or array, by incorporating polyols into the solutions to be dispensed. The polyols increase the time-dependent and thermal stability of all of the spotted proteins on the same support, thus conserving the micro-array for quantitative multiparametric analysis after a long storage period.